

Who Can Belong...

The Kentucky Extension Homemakers Association (KEHA) welcomes members no matter what their age, race, color, national origin, religion, marital status or sex. Fathers raising families alone are finding solutions to their homemaking problems in KEHA.

The program is of interest to all income levels. Any full or part-time homemaker, male or female, rural or urban, teenager or senior citizen and in-between, may belong to KEHA.

You may also expand your horizons by attending county, state and national meetings and workshops that provide good fellowship combined with concentrated learning opportunities.

If you are interested in joining or starting an Extension Homemakers Unit in your neighborhood or community, please contact your County Cooperative Extension Office.

The telephone listing is in this brochure. The Family and Consumer Sciences Agent can put you in touch with the presidents of local Homemaker Units who can inform you of meeting dates. They can assist you in finding out how you may start a unit in your community.

We're More Than You Think!

Extension Homemakers is for Everyone

Why should you join Homemakers? Because, you need to do something good for yourself, your family and your community! Everyone is a homemaker, whether you stay at home or work full time. A homemaker's club is a terrific place to meet people and make new friends, learn new skills and ways to make your life easier and less stressful. It's a great place to share your individual skills and talents, build your confidence and teach you leadership, too. Did you know it is healthy to do things for other people? It sure is! And we have many volunteer opportunities to appeal to everyone. Don't worry—we don't work all the time. We also have lots of fun!
